16 John the Baptist preaching in the Desert, after Raffaelle or Parmigiano, marked 1532, No. 5, from the Collections of Count Fries and Mr. Ford 1

17 The same, first state before the date, superb proof with margin, from Mr. Ford's Collection 1

 With reference to the doubts of Bartsch, the engraver appears to be Agostino Veneziano, the chiaroscuro of other plates of his having been altered on a similar principle; but Raphael is not the author of the design, which forms one of the illuminations to the Vatican MS. of Virgil engraved by Bartoli, and refers probably to the passage:

"Ad puteos aut alta greges ad stagna jubeto
"Currentem ilignis potare canalibus undam;"

464 Peace, after Raffaelle, No. 393, from the De Fries collection 1

465 The same, an unique unfinished proof 1

 This exhibits the state in which the plate was left by Marcantonio, before it was finished up by an unskilful hand. The shadows consist of masses of vigorous hatchings, the ends of the lines not being yet entered with the graver, the hair and features in slight outline, and the whole has been gone over with a pen, probably to guide the person employed to complete it. On the back is a pen-drawing of Mars with a spear, perhaps the sketch for a companion print of "War." The inferior execution of parts of this print, so inconsistent with the burin of Marcantonio, has hitherto been unexplained. It is one of the most instructive and interesting illustrations of the art and history of engraving in existence.
